Readmission Video

1. Introduction

Danita Brown, Associate Dean of Students

Hello, I’m Danita Brown. If you’re watching this video, chances are you’ve been academically dropped from the university or are concerned that you may be dropped in the near future. You probably have lots of questions about your current standing and what you need to do next. In this video I’ll begin explaining the readmission process.

Students are academically dropped when their cumulative GPA falls below university requirements. Once a student is academically dropped, he or she cannot register for classes without formally applying for readmission to the university. Don’t lose heart. Many students complete the process each year and are successfully readmitted.

However, you need to know that readmission is neither automatic nor guaranteed for any applicant for any academic term. The responsibility for learning about the readmission process and completing the required steps lies with you.

The first step is to review the information on this website. Be sure to watch all the videos. Our staff will describe the readmission process and the steps you’ll need to take. Most of your questions will be answered as you watch the videos. Transcripts of each video are also available on the readmission website.

The videos may direct you to other information on the readmission website. Be sure to use the information that has been collected to help you through this process.

Make sure you’ve completed all requirements before opening the application for readmission. I can’t stress this enough. If you rush to submit a readmission application before completing the required steps, your application will be delayed and may even be denied.

When you’re ready, open the application link on the readmission website. You’ll need to answer a few questions about the process, just so we’re sure you understand steps that are involved and are ready to begin the process. When you answer the questions correctly, you’ll be directed through the online application and payment pages.

The Committee on Scholastic Delinquencies and Readmissions will take four to eight weeks to conduct a full review of your application. Once the committee has made a decision, the Office of the Dean of Students will notify you in writing. You’ll be anxious to learn the results, but you’ll need to wait four to eight weeks before hearing from our office.

Again, be sure to watch all the videos and review all the information on the readmission website. I wish you the best.
