Hi, my name is Lou Ann Hamilton and I am a readmission counselor. In this segment I’m going to discuss the required layout period.

After you’ve been academically dropped the first time, you are required to layout for a minimum of one semester before you are eligible for readmission consideration. This means you will not be able to register for or take classes at Purdue during that semester. You should seriously consider taking classes at another school during this time.

If you have been dropped a second time or more, you are required to layout a minimum of two semesters before you would be eligible for readmission consideration.

The only exception to this layout period is if you have fifteen credits or less to complete for graduation. If this is the case, you need to get a letter from your school stating that you have fifteen credit hours or less to graduate and that the school is willing to waive the set-out period. Your academic advisor will be able to help you get this letter. You must complete these hours the semester you are readmitted. You still need to complete the readmission application and bring the letter from your school to the Office of the Dean of Students.
